Dear Harry:

All your friends here are much concerned to hear of your accident and want to send you their sympathy and hopes for a quick recovery. Today Ernestine writes that your knee will be set on Friday. I know you will be glad to have that over so it can begin to heal. If it will be anything like my broken wrist, you don't feel a thing while they are setting it. They gave me an injection, and I was asleep in a second. When I woke up I found myself in a cast, and the Doctors cleaning up.

It is lovely here now, clear, sunny days,-- too sunny really for the brief shower the other night did nothing to relieve the drought. The colors are just beginning but because of the dryness will probably not be vivid this year.

Peggy and Rhetta have just left for N.Y. to see Mai off tomorrow. Mary probably sailed last night, and I hope will not meet the storms which the boats had coming in last week. She has a grand new winter coat very warm and comfortable. I called at her hotel on my way up and had breakfast with her.

I have been digging in here with a typewriter in my room, No 6, on my part of the pamphlet outline. I hope you are not worrying about this document, for I am sure that among us we can finish it by the 15th. It is the kind of thing we have written so often that it should not take too long to pound it out in a new form now. I expect to be home tomorrow night and can work at it this weekend, and next week.

67 Amalgamated from Troy are arriving Sat. These are mostly the large noisy ladies who made night hideous last year. Perhaps they will be more subdued this time.

Everyone is sorry that you probably can't be here for the reunion next week. They expect about 35 at the last court mostly from this past summer.

I have called on Louise Brown, on Mary Garibaldi, on Mrs. Ackert, etc. She sends you her greetings, and is sorry you came a cropper. Louise is probably preparing to stay here all winter although there is a possible apartment in Poughkeepsie they may be able to get.

I'll hope to pay you a call soon after I get back.

My love to you,

Jane
